A NOTABLE FOURTH.

Fourth of July this year is a notable anniversary in several respects. It is the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence; it is the 100th anniversary of the deaths of former Presidents Adams and Jefferson, it is the birthday of President Coolidge, who was born July 4, 1872.

Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the Declaration, and John Adams, who made the principal address in its behalf before the Continental Congress, both became Presidents of the United States. That both of them died on July 4, 1826, exactly fifty years after its adoption, furnishes one of the most remarkable coincidences in history.

After the establishment of the government of the United States, Adams and Jefferson were political opponents. Adams was vice president during Washington's two administrations and succeeded Washington as President, but was defeated for re-election by Jefferson, who became the third President of the United States.

However antagonistic they may have been in politics, after their retirement from public life Adams and Jefferson were close friends and maintained a continuous correspondence for several years. These personal letters are among the most interesting documents of their day. Adams was 90 years of age at his death, while Jefferson was 83.

In view of the circumstances stated, July 4 has a peculiar significance this year, which cannot fail to impress every patriotic American.

A nervous correspondent of the New York World demands that stamp moistening devices be installed in postoffices, to eliminate the "insanitary and dangerous" habit of licking stamps with the tongue. It is unspokeably sad to think how our communities are being filled with victims of the stamp-licking habit.

A noted educator suggests that we should make our ignorance "selective," meaning that inasmuch as no one can become informed about everything, we should deliberately select those subjects of which we are content to remain in ignorance. For most of us these would make a quite lengthy list.

Another international matter has been settled, to the satisfaction, it is hoped, of an anxious world. Count Lannoy, grand master of the house of Queen Elizabeth, of the Belgians, has issued an official statement denying that the queen has had her hair bobbed. Incidentally, he explains that the queen's hair is as long as a snake's tail, and that it is because of this that she has not been seen for some time.

LET US ISSUE THE $150,000.00 STREET PAVING BONDS.

Some months since the Mississippi Legislature authorized the city of Bay St. Louis, by provisions of a certain bill, which passed both branches, to issue bonds in the amount of $150,000.00 to complete the paving of Front street, along its entirety, Carroll avenue and other important streets that have been left disregarded at the expense of streets from which the tax return is not to be compared with the former named, a fact that are, comparatively speaking, nil.

If you own a house and it needs painting, you will pay for the painting, whether it ever goes on or not. Every day you neglect having it done the house deteriorates somewhat and eventually the amount of deterioration will equal the cost of the painting. You will have paid for the paint job without getting out. Also, the fact that your house needs painting, affects to some extent every other piece of property in your neighborhood. Not only you, but all your neighbors, are paying for the painting which your house needs. As the months roll by the cost of that paint job is paid for many times.

When one goes into a district and notices that the houses need painting more or less, need new steps, new porch posts, new porch floors and other repair, one cannot help wondering how much that district has already paid for the work that is needed but still undone.

Take two sections of a city, adjoining each other, perhaps. Both are equally well situated and do not differ topographically, property will be worth two to ten times more than in the other. People able to pay rents or own property in the better section naturally select it as a place of residence or business. The poorer section pays for the prosperity of the better one and has nothing to show for it.

Consider the case of a badly kept-up street or road in a heavily traveled section. The amount which motorists lose through avoiding that thoroughfare—extra wear of tires, etc.—and the extra wear upon vehicles that are forced to use it, in the course of a year, pay many times for putting it in perfect condition. Business, property owners, motor owners and others, pay over and over the cost of an improvement which they do not get.

A street railway company that permits its rails, roadbed and rolling stock to run down pays several times the cost of repairing and good upkeep.

A railroad places a watchman at a street crossing instead of making a subway beneath the tracks. Even with a watchman there, accidents occur and the watchman's salary goes on. In a comparatively short time the railway pays the cost of making a subway, without having it.

The taxpayer in opposing a needed improvement sees only the tax. He does not see the loss of business, deterioration of property and other effects, which failure to provide the improvements costs him. He is likely to congratulate himself on defeating a tax, while at the same time an amount greatly in excess of the tax is going out of his pocket or failing to seek his pocket.

Many a corporation by resisting a municipal improvement loses in good will many times the amount the improvement would have cost it. It pays but has nothing to show.

So it is with the city of Bay St. Louis. The same rule applies. Failing to issue the $150,000.00 street paving bonds in order to finish the present job is a case where we are losing money. For we are paying for doing without further paved roads, and putting out good money, yet not getting the paved streets.

We hope the Board of Mayor and Aldermen will not hesitate to put the issue up to the people. Let the people decide the matter. It is they who pay the bills, after all, not the Board of Mayor and Aldermen—far from it. There might be opposition to it now. The little fellow, who is little because he has been a failure all his life, will oppose, predicating his opposition on a sense of economy, but bless his little heart, he is paying just the same through the years to come and will be without paved roads.

We are of the opinion the Board of Mayor and Aldermen will put the issue square up to the people. Let them go to the polls and ballot on it, if the law so requires. If, on the other hand, it is necessary to promulgate their intention of issuing bonds, then let them do so and if the taxpayers oppose, they may do so through the proper channel. We are sure the Board of Mayor and Aldermen do not wish to be the arbiters in a matter that directly concerns the taxpayers and especially since they, the taxpayers, pay the bills.

According to a press report, 20 Republicans engaged in a free-for-all fist fight in San Antonio, Tex. The story naturally caused readers to wonder how they ever got so many Republicans together in that Democratic stronghold.

An admiring editor recently referred to Senator Gale Blom as "the South Carolina statesman." This brings to mind the story of the meeting in the back of a room in a small hotel in the city of Charleston, S. C., where the late Senator Blom was killed by a bullet from the hand of a man who was known to him as "the South Carolina statesman."

HOME WORK SWINDLERS.

Last week the postoffice department issued a fraud order barring from the mails all matter addressed to or coming from several concerns which advertise for persons to address envelopes and mail circulars at home. A sample advertisement of one of these swindling concerns is as follows:

"Ladies wanting home work, any kind, spare time, write, inclose stamp. Eller Company, V-286, Broadway, New York."

Those who replied to such advertisements were usually required to pay certain sums, from 50 cents to $5, for "directories," "outfits," or some similar equipment, before starting to work. Then the conditions under which the work was to be done were found to be such that few made any further effort to engage in it.

The swindlers made their money from the small sums sent for the "outfits," and from orders for worthless jewelry and the like. Hundreds of women in need of employment made sacrifices to send these small amounts, only to suffer disappointment through losing their money and failing to secure the remunerative work which they had been led to expect.

It is hard to imagine a more contemptible or heartless swindling scheme than this, as it preys entirely upon the poor and unfortunate, who can least afford to lose the money thus fraudulently secured from them.

OLDEST LIVING THING.

There stands in Sequoia National Park, in California, the oldest living thing in the world, the General Sherman tree, more than 5,000 years old. It is the largest of those redwood trees for which California is famous, and is surrounded by many others of almost equal size and age.

The General Sherman tree is 280 feet high and 36½ feet in diameter at its base. The William McKinley tree is taller, being 290 feet in height but only 28 feet in diameter. The Abraham Lincoln tree is 270 feet high and 31 feet in diameter.

Some of these trees were already forest giants, ten centuries old, before Abraham fared forth from his native Ur of the Chaldees to found the Hebrew nation. They had withstood the storms of thirty centuries before the birth of Christ. Yet they still stand in sublime majesty, living, growing things, and will live and grow for many centuries to come.

Survivors from the dawn of civilization, awe-inspiring in their stately grandeur, they seem to hold within their massive trunks the mysterious secrets of antiquity.

If one would gain a better realization of how brief is the span of human life, let him consider the General Sherman tree, and contemplate that 200 generations of men have appeared and passed from earth's stage since the soil was broken by its first tiny shoot.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

In the June issue of Current History magazine a thoughtful contribution to the controversy over capital punishment is furnished by Harry Elmer Barnes, sociology professor of Smith and Amherst colleges, who avers that the taking of human life as a punishment for crime is a relic of barbarism.

Tracing the origin of the death penalty, Prof. Barnes declares that it arose through an effort to placate the pagan gods. Later, death was inflicted through motives of revenge. More recently, capital punishment has been defended on the ground that it has a deterrent effect upon other potential murderers. All these theories are dismissed by Prof. Barnes as equally abhorrent. "Taking what may be called the advanced view of the causes underlying human behavior, he says:

"The human animal has his conduct absolutely determined by the combined influences of heredity and social surroundings; here is not the slightest iota of choice allowed to any individual from birth to the grave. Conduct can be altered only by altering the organism or by the introduction of new or different social influences and forms of stimulation."

Without specifically recommending a detailed plan for dealing with the problem, Prof. Barnes declares that if crime is to be eliminated there must be measures adopted to prevent the birth of defective persons, so far as possible. When defectives are born in spite of restrictions imposed on improvement of the social environment and special education are recommended. He apparently favors the painless extermination of hopeless types of humanity who menace their fellowmen.

Whatever we may think of Prof. Barnes' views as a whole, we must agree with one of his conclusions, which is that punishment for crime should be determined by permanent boards of experts, instead of being left to juries composed frequently of ignorant and irresponsible citizens.

Recent alarming reports of the growing hatred of Europeans for the United States are, to some extent, counteracted by favorable news from Germany. The German press, according to a recent issue of the "New York Times," is now showing a marked interest in the American people and their country.

WHO PAYS FOR ADVERTISING?

Complete candor with the public is a development of the day's business enlightenment. In New York a recent advertisement in the Times raised the question: "Who Pays the Advertising Bills?" A Granat advertisement in a Sunday newspaper, it was shown, cost $800, and Mr. Haight declared: "That advertisement brought $16,000 in sales, costing 5 per cent. it is so year in and year out. Does it raise the price of the diamond ring you select? Does it add a further tax upon your pocketbook? We believe not. The advertising increases sales and as a result the ratio of other expense is lowered. Whether we sell $1,000 a year or $100,000 a year the ratio is the same."

This remarkable store publicity then goes on to show that the average overhead expense of 394 retail jewelers last year, as certified by the Harvard Bureau, was 38.3 per cent of their sales, but Granat Brothers' expense was 25 per cent. Many of these jewelers did not advertise. Their combined sales reached $34,978,000, and their net profit was only 1.2 per cent of sales. Granat Brothers sold their goods at about 8½ per cent below the gross profit, than the average, but made 5½ per cent on sales.

"Advertising," wrote Mr. Haight, "increased sales to a point where we could afford to sell our diamonds and jewelry at lower prices to you and still make a larger net profit for ourselves. That is having your cake and eating it. So our customers did not pay for the advertising. It increased prices. Who did, then, pay for the advertising? We'll tell you the answer. Our competitors in the jewelry business, chiefly those who do not advertise, paid for our advertising. They paid for it in trade that slipped away from them to us. They paid for it in the new customers we got which they might have had. They paid for it in high expense, low volume, high gross profit and low net. They paid for it in small turnover."

RUNNING DOWN THE TOWN.

If you had a horse that you wanted to sell, you would not go about town talking constantly about its bad points. If you did, you wouldn't be likely to sell it. What would you think of a merchant who made a practice of standing out in front of his store telling all passers any better or shoddy and not worth much? You would probably say he is a fool, and you would be right. Now, the town in which you live is your own; your business is here, your job is here. Do you think you are going to make a stock of goods to be better or add to the value of your property by standing around and roaring about what a rotten town it is? If you do, you'd better see an alienist about your mental condition. As a matter of fact, every time you "run down" your town, you are hurting your own business and detracting from the value of your property. Even though you may have no pride in your community, you ought to have sense enough not to injure your own interest. Every business concern, in addition to a stock of goods and plant, has intangible assets of the greatest value. Among the assets is its good name, its reputation for square dealing. When you hurt the good name of such a concern, you injure it more than you would if you should burn down the building. Besides its business and industrial institutions, its homes, schools and all other kinds of property, every town has intangible assets which must be protected. When you talk down your town, you are injuring its good name and thereby giving it a blow of the most serious kind. If you want your business to be better, if you want your property to increase in value, if you want to live in a better town, forget your grouches and begin to talk for your town, instead of running it down.—Bemidji, Minnesota, Sentinel.

OAKS ON THE COAST AN ASSET.

"The oak trees on our Mississippi Gulf Coast are a great asset," said Colonel Apperson, mine host of the Buena Vista Hotel, at Biloxi, to The Echo representative a few days since while spending the week-end at this inviting and justly popular hotel. "You will see," he continued, "in building this hotel we saved every oak possible, even over on the east side of our building terrain we built the new wing without sacrificing the oaks save one little fellow, and as you see, he continued, 'We left the stump as a sort of marker in memoriam.' This hotel will cost over a million dollars, but it is worth possibly doubly that amount because of the trees. This oak in front, around which we have built the circle driveway is priceless and here on the end of our west wing are oaks that are similarly regarded. One who would deliberately cut a tree down is well nigh a criminal, and laws for their preservation could not be made too stringent."

"Over in Ocean Springs there is a staved oak tree of mine, who owns a home that has the finest oaks I have seen. One alone here on the grounds of the Buena Vista, if set in the center would touch the sides of both wings of the hotel. I never saw a more spreading oak than this. Surely it has been here for many a century and stands not only as a monument to time but as a 'thing of beauty unadorned.'"

Colonel Apperson observes the beauty of the matchless Mississippi Gulf Coast, and by no means the least of these are wonderful oaks, here where they grow like nowhere else.

Gilmer Joyce, in his poem, has well said:

"I think that I shall never see a poem as lovely as a tree,
A tree whose hungry mouth is prest against the earth's sweet flowing breast.
A tree that talks to God all day, and lifts its lofty arms to pray;
A tree that may in summer wear a nest of robins in her hair;
Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who lives intimate with rain,
And who is like a child who lies alone
Poems are made by fools like me, but only God can make a tree."

It is planned to restore the house in Scotland in which David Livingstone, the African explorer, was born, and preserve it as a memorial.

and regular savings of definite money in a given time for a definite purpose. Definite objectives should be set before people begin to commit themselves to saving that at least resembles an investment. The chief weakness of a savings account has always been its lack of interest. My personal experience has been that the proper management of a savings account is to do so in such a way that the interest is added to the balance of the money is earning, which should be done on a budget carefully prepared. This subject of budget is a topic itself, worthy of consideration, but I will not have time to discuss it here.

LIFE INSURANCE.

Life insurance, perhaps, no form of finance which a bank can give is more practical than advice of life insurance. Every bank is able to advise their clients regarding their life insurance needs and the type of insurance policy to their needs. A recent investigation was made in New York City of the savings banks which have 10 depositors, and it was found that 10 families represented by those banks do not carry over an average of $1,200.00 life insurance. Persons have not thought much of life insurance or the tragedy of leaving a family without protection. Banks have the opportunity to advise the importance of life insurance because of their disinterest in insurance company itself.

HOME BUYING.

Every bank should have a fund of interest in the small investor, particularly in the man of relatively means who wants to own his home. This is one of the big personal economic questions that the American family today faces. The home promotes good citizenship and happiness and contentment. The average man cannot be expected to know real estate values, or the incident to the purchase of a home. Banks may give real good advice along these lines, as they are interested parties. Many people take to buy property without first means to meet the current needs. They should be guided and advised by their customers how to accumulate money for a down payment on a home, and assist them to obtain a mortgage to complete the purchase.

INVESTMENTS.

Considerable number of people are seeking honest advice on investments, and someone in every community should be well enough informed to be able to speak with authority on the subject. People are going to invest their money, and it is better that they do it after consulting an authority to act on their own limited knowledge, supplemented by the person of a clever salesman.

ROCKEFELLER, CARNEGIE.

John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Carnegie are two of the great men of our time. Their wealth has been used in many ways for the benefit of mankind. Their wealth has not been used for selfish purposes, but for the good of the community.

JAMES J. HILL.

James J. Hill was a man of vision and energy. He was a pioneer in the development of the Northwest. He was a man of great wealth, but he was also a man of great character. He was a man who was not afraid to take risks, and he was a man who was not afraid to fail. He was a man who was not afraid to die, and he was a man who was not afraid to live.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER.

John D. Rockefeller was a man of great wealth and power. He was a man who was not afraid to take risks, and he was a man who was not afraid to fail. He was a man who was not afraid to die, and he was a man who was not afraid to live. He was a man who was not afraid to be a man of great wealth and power.

Last Saturday Attracted Many Visitors to Pine Hills, Across From Bay St. Louis—In Social Pastimes. Many Lots Sold to Investors.

Last Saturday was named "A Perfect Day" by the management of Pine Hills-on-the-Bay, when a special train from New Orleans brought to that beautiful and attractive spot a number of visitors, entertained for the day at dinner, at bridge during the afternoon, and a collation before returning to New Orleans that night.

A number of local friends had been invited and when the end of the day had come to pass it was unanimously voted that in truth it had been a "Perfect Day," just as the management had planned it. The Pine Hills Orchestra, of New Orleans, supplied music throughout the day. While many of the ladies played bridge, and the winners were awarded unusually handsome trophies for their skill, others walked and drove around the spacious golf and park premises. Many visited the shell beach, where the million dollar hotel is fast getting into shape, the fifth story already in the building. This structure is of solid concrete and steel, indestructible and naturally fireproof. This hotel will easily rank with the largest and more pretentious hotels of the Coast.

ARE WE WORSE THAN NERO?

The yearly fire loss of this country and Canada would build nearly two Panama Canals; Pay all the costs of the American postal service; Come within an ace of paying the salary of every school teacher in the United States.

Each day sees go up in flames in this country, on the average, 360 homes, 96 farm buildings, 15 hotels, 6 department stores, 5 churches, 5 school houses, 4 warehouses and 1 hospital.

In the time of Widow O'Leary, whose cow kicked over the lantern that burned Chicago, fire took a toll throughout America of $19 a minute; today that toll has grown to $1,044 a minute, an increase more than four times as great as the increase in population and very much faster than the increase in wealth.

Nor is that the worst. Last year 15,000 Americans were killed by fires and 16,000 injured severely—exactly double the human toll of only ten years ago. And 85 per cent of this tremendous toll of property and life, experts agree, was due to easily preventable causes.

That is confirmed by the fact that in older and poorer Europe, which has to be careful, the per capita fire loss is only 33 cents a year to $4.00 here.

OCEAN SPRINGS' HISTORIC TREES FACING DANGER

Magnificent Oaks May Fall Before Straight Lines of Modern Progress.

Ocean Springs, Miss., June 26.—The Town Council has appointed a committee to confer with the various property owners on the question of whether or not to remove the trees on Washington avenue, between Robinson and Porter avenues, preparatory to paving. Washington avenue is the main street of Ocean Springs, and the largest and most beautiful live oaks on the entire Coast spread their graceful shady and beautiful limbs over the streets, and visitors are always ready to remark how beautiful these trees are and what good work Ocean Springs has done in the preservation of these beautiful trees.

Ocean Springs is noted all over the country for its natural scenic beauty and without doubt the trees that line each side, that bring so many beautiful people to Ocean Springs, are the real cause, and it is this that prompted the establishment of the summer art colony that is being so successfully carried on.

JACKSON'S BIRTHPLACE.

The century-old controversy over Andrew Jackson's birthplace, which was settled in the House of Representatives the other day, when Congressman Hammer, of North Carolina, told the members that "Old Hickory" was a native of the Tarheel State, and not of South Carolina, as Jackson himself believed.

Mr. Hammer submitted historical data which proved his assertions; at least to his own satisfaction, and said: "Even President Jackson was mistaken when he said he was born in South Carolina."

LAST APPEAL FOR ST. MARY'S.

Mrs. Elizabeth Boudin Will Be Forced to Give Up the Use of Upkeep of Cemetery Unless Immediate Financial Assistance is forthcoming.

Mrs. Elizabeth Boudin has made the following statement to The Echo: "I am asking you one more time to ask the public to send, if they will, their cash donations to help the upkeep of St. Mary's Cemetery, that is if they intend to do so. To put the matter off means and makes the work more expensive than to have it done at different times."

"I have at present a good colored man to work, and only pay him $1.50 per day, and hate to give him up for the present. At least, now, if the people we loved ones in St. Mary's will have the work continued and completed, it will be necessary to send in the cash or I will have to give up the work, as much as I will regret to do so."

"After I spend what cash I have on hand, and that is just enough to last one week, then if the people interested fail to respond I will have to give up the work. It will be quite a relief and matter of adverse comment, but I will have the satisfaction of knowing that before I did quit I exerted every possible means; I have asked and begged."

The Echo regrets to have to publish the foregoing. It is quite a reflection on the paper goes out to thousands of readers every week it is a thing a matter that we had better keep at home. The city of Bay St. Louis has a salaried keeper for Cedar Rest Cemetery, and it seems there should be some system or organization to take care of St. Mary's should be taken care of permanently, although this would cost more. Mrs. Boudin is willing to direct the work, which she has been doing for a few years, and is willing to continue to do, but funds will have to be forthcoming. This is a matter parties interested might think of. To abandon the cemetery to weeds and decay would be disgraceful.

Have Gas Cooking In Your Home, Too!

Make Their Own Gas

Joseph O. Mauffray,

Selling Agents for Bay St. Louis, Miss.

HERE is the cooker that puts an end to cook stove drudgery! It's the Coleman, the modern stove that makes and burns its own gas—gives housewives on farms and in small towns all the conveniences of a city gas range. It's a gas range and gas plant, all in one. Easy and safe to operate. Tank can't spill fuel, can't be filled while in use, no crawling flame, a cleaner, hotter flame than natural gas or kerosene. A clean kitchen—always, and clean pots and pans—no smoke, no soot.

The Coleman cooks an average meal on 24 worth of fuel. Made in various styles and sizes from small Bungalow Cookers to the large ones. Come in for a demonstration.

THE VOICE OF THE LIBERTY BELL

This is one of the two new official posters of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition, opening in Philadelphia June 1 to celebrate 150 years of American Independence. The Exposition will continue to December 1. Dan Smith, the artist, has symbolized the epoch in history which the tolling of the Liberty Bell in Independence Hall, July 4, 1776, marked and has depicted the growth of the United States from the original thirteen states, represented by the thirteen stars which emerge from the mouth of the Liberty Bell.

Burning the range for cattle grazing is a mistake. It does not improve the range for grazing, but robs the cattle of food.

There is a movement on foot in some states to make burning the range a criminal offense. I am opposed to such a law. People who do it are not criminals, and it would be a crime to make them criminals by passing a law.

They hurt their own cattle, thinking they help the cattle. That is not criminal. It is ignorance. It does not call for legislation. It calls for education.

L. & N. TO BUILD $1,000,000 BRIDGE OVER MOBILE RIVER

Mobile, Ala., July 2.—A contract was let yesterday by the L. & N. railroad for a new bridge across Mobile river, north of the city, to the Missouri Valley Bridge and Iron Co. of Leavenworth, Kan., according to announcement by W. M. Boykin, assistant superintendent of the New Orleans and Mobile division of the line. Work on the bridges will start as soon as the material can be assembled. The approximate cost of the bridge is $1,000,000.

The new bridge is being built to take care of heavier engines to be used on this part of the line.

When all in favor of "controlled fires" for the sake of preventing bigger fires has been said, the fact remains that even a controlled fire is bad for the soil, slows up the growth of the trees and lessens the ability of the trees to produce turpentine and lumber.

To say we cannot find a better way, is like saying there could be no telephones, electric lights or automobiles. Once people thought they had to suffer yellow fever epidemics. Now, we know better.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT UPON THE DEATH OF OUR ASSOCIATE MEMBER OF THE BAY ST. LOUIS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

At our last monthly meeting, upon due notice being taken of the absence of our fellow officer and member, E. J. Leonard, and after many eulogistic expressions upon his life and services to the Chamber of Commerce, it was unanimously voted that suitable resolutions be drawn up and be inscribed upon our minutes, and that a copy of same be sent to his widow and the press.

Therefore, Be it Resolved, That we, the officers and members of the Bay St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, tender to the bereaved widow and to all other members of its family our most heartfelt sympathy in their irreparable loss, realizing, however, that words are very inadequate in the expression of our sentiments.

His untimely death was in the nature of a disaster to the many enterprises he fostered and to the club of which he was an honored and faithful officer and member.

Be it said to his credit, that though eared in an atmosphere of plenty, he made the best use of his good fortune, and made of same an instrument of audacious action and a commendable means of enjoying life; his home-life was ideal, there abode complete comradely.

Man being a growth by law, cause and effect is as undeviating in the hidden realm of thought as in the world of material things; we are part of the "Divinity that shapes our ends" and are partly makers of ourselves, and he who conquers doubt and fear conquers failure; he conquered failure.

Yet in the world we know best, who has diligently searched for the law upon which his physical being is established and become the wise director of his energies?

Taking our lamented brother all in all, he achieved success, he lived well and in his too short span of life accomplished his task. He never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty nor failed to express it.

WILL BUILD REEFS IN STATE CONFINES.

Louisiana Oyster Grounds Soon To Be Closed to Mississippi Packing Plants.

As an outgrowth of the recent legislation by the State of Louisiana against outside interests removing oysters from what State's reefs for canning purposes in other localities, aid is now being sought by Biloxi packing interests, headed by Mayor John Kennedy, towards building up Mississippi's reefs, and assuring an adequate supply of bivalves for Mississippi packers.

The new Louisiana law allows a year and a half for Mississippi packers to make other arrangements for securing oysters, and the packers are now endeavoring to enlist the aid and co-operation of the United States Bureau of Fisheries and the Mississippi Oyster Commission in planting and building up new reefs within the State.

The matter has been taken up with Senator Pat Harrison, Chief O'Malley of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, at Washington, and Minor Russell, president of the Mississippi Oyster Commission. Mr. Russell has been asked to call an early meeting of the oyster commission to give consideration to the Mississippi oyster situation with a view of planting more reefs on the Coast by that body.

Government Will Help.

In the letter to the Bureau of Fisheries Mr. Kennedy explained the new situation in Mississippi, and received a reply from Louis Radcliffe, acting commissioner of the department of fisheries, in which Mr. Radcliffe said:

"Your letter of June 17, concerning plans for a survey of the oyster bottoms of the State of Mississippi. We are very sympathetic to your desire to improve and increase the yield of oysters in your district and are keenly aware of the necessity for the highest grade technical knowledge upon which sound principles of development must be based.

"At present we are engaged in fundamental studies on the life and growth of the oyster and on problems affecting the distribution and abundance of the oyster set. Extensive experiments are under way in Long Island Sound and in Georgia and continued observations are being made in various other places along the Gulf and Atlantic Coasts. We have recently increased our staff of investigators in order to afford more complete service to the industry, and we shall, therefore, in all probability, be able to undertake a preliminary survey of conditions in Mississippi during the present year. What further steps will be necessary to afford practical aid to the oystermen of your district will, of course, depend upon the local conditions. It will be necessary for us to depend upon your State commission for co-operation and assistance, particularly in the supplying of boats and labor.

"I am referring the question to Dr. Galtsoff and will advise you of his plans in this connection as soon as possible."

Can Build New Reefs.

Experienced oystermen of Paragouls are of the opinion that there are sufficient undeveloped "bottoms" on the Mississippi Coast to cultivate enough oysters to keep the present market supplied, and that in the event of a future oyster shortage, they years and the expenditure of a great deal of money to build the reefs.

The Federal government can conduct a survey and designate the places where oysters can thrive and it will be the State's function to plant the reefs with "seed" oysters and with old shells which will catch the spawn as it floats to sea. The oyster commission is authorized by law to expend as much as $100,000 the next two years on building new reefs, but this money must be collected from taxes levied on taking oysters from the producing reefs, and it is doubtful if half that amount can be collected.

There is some discussion of holding a meeting of citizens of the Coast to discuss means of obtaining funds for this work, which will probably result in recommendations to the next legislature for a comprehensive program.

Dr. Reed will join his family a few days later, for an extended stay in the city. The doctor is moving wagon and will be here on the day night brings to an end.

ONE OF WAVELAND'S OLDEST BUILDINGS

Bay St. Louis, July 19, 1936. The Standard Oil Company's new filling station, located in the city, near the beach front, and opposite the Hotel Wagon.

The building is a handsome, modern structure, constructed of brick, and is one of the handsomest and most attractive of its kind in the city.

Surrounding the building proper is a liberal parking space, all cemented with a satin-finished coating.

An ornamental fence marks off the limits of the grounds, and a sidewalk on three sides of the lot will set off the entire place.

HANCOCK COUNTY TO ISSUE $1,000,000 DOLLAR BONDS

Acting and cooperating with the Hancock County Road Protection Committee, of which R. C. Engman is chairman, President R. S. Weston of the Board of Supervisors, announced this week the county's intention to issue one million dollars worth of bonds.

This statement at first might seem astounding, but on second thought it is sane and in fact a matter of economy in the fullest degree of meaning. This bond issue is to pay for a continuous sea wall, or heavy and substantial type, from near the mouth of Jordan river to near the mouth of Pearl river, embracing every point between Bayou Ladose and Bayou Cade, where kind of the highest type of sea wall, or sea wall, exists and constant erosion is taking place.

A million-dollar cost for permanent protection would mean the establishment of permanent value to the extent of untold millions, and as Mr. Weston explained, these bonds would automatically be retired in due time by the gasoline tax.

A sea wall built under the protection of the Hancock County Protection Committee would mean as well good roads and permanent protection.

During the coming week, Chief Civil Engineer Billingsley, who with Assistant Engineer DeArmas and others have been working for several weeks preliminary survey, etc., will present to the Board of Supervisors his findings and plans, and it is possible the Board will accept the plans, if no changes or corrections are to be made.

Mr. Weston stated that he and his Board were very anxious to put this plan through and he would allow of no unnecessary delay. In fact, if necessary, he said, the Board will wait on the commission as we wish to get our public notices in press, according to law, as early as possible and save at least 30 days.

INDEPENDENCE

Our country fought for and won for its independence. If you are shackled with debt and spendthrift habits, you must work for your independence.

The road is straight and easy. It starts by opening an account in our bank, making regular deposits each pay day, and always spending less than you make.

Your independence grows, your ability to make money increases, and you think twice before you spend foolishly—and don't.
